THE SIMOON OF THE DESERT.--We have seen many different accounts of that terror of those crossing the African Desert, the terrible simoon or hot wind, but the following from Colonel DuCourret's new work, 'Life in the Desert,' presents some new points:

"The heavens became suddenly obscured by heavy clouds, until the sun, rayless and red as blood, warned us of the approaching tempest. Whirlwinds of sand, mingled with the falling vapors, swept the desert, which surged before the blast like angry waters. We hastily ranged ourselves in Indian file, so as to present as little surface as possible to the coming simoon, for which on this occasion we were not unprepared.

Gradually our lungs became oppressed, our eyes bloodshot, our lips hot and parched. The air around us, scorching as the breath of a furnace, was charged with particles of fine sand, and drifted before the wind like sea foam in a storm. The lightning bolts flashed, accompanied by the crash of thunder, which sounded over the gloomy desert like the voice of Jehovah. Men stood in wild affright; camels broke away and rushed bellowing from the track, until they fell headlong in the sand, into which the plunged their heads and long necks, seeking thus to escape the poisoned breath of the plague wind.

Nine of our camels were missing; in searching for which, we approached the end of one of the sand gulfs, when we stumbled upon the remains of a caravan bound from Grein in Hadramaut to Olu Jasep. Removing the sand, we found several dead Arabs, victims of the fell blast of the simoon, in the terror and confusion caused by which they had evidently wandered blindly to the edge of the treacherous quicksand in which the main body of the caravan had perished.

Among them we found a young man and a girl--brother and sister--clasped in each other's arms. A slight indication of moisture on the bodies of these inspired one with the hope that it might not yet be too late to restore them to consciousness. By judicious and persevering friction, and the copious use of lavender, with which luckily I was well supplied, I soon had the pleasure of seeing the young girl revive--while Selim, by the application of similar remedies to the youth, was equally successful."

JOHN asked Julia if she would have him. "No," said she, "I will not have you; but before John could recover the shock, she archly put in, 'but you may have me.'"

COMBATIVENESS.--Men and animals are born with a propensity to fight. Is there in the whole range of the animal creation, one animal that does not fight, if it has sense enough and power of locomotion? Oysters cannot fight. If their organ of combativeness is not wanting, they have no use for it. Lobsters fight, so do many kinds of fish.

Bees fight savagely, both in swarms and singly. Two bees having a quarrel, go out, armed with their deadly stings, more formidable than ten-inch bow-knives--go out of the hive and fight a duel. Ants fight with great ferocity. Armies of ants meet other armies in deadly battle and cover the field with killed and wounded. They also fight duels. This is the case with many other insects. Spiders not only fight, but eat other up like human cannibals. From the elephant to the mouse, the quadrupeds fight; even the gentlest, under sufficient provocation. We believe the whole monkey tribe, as it approaches humanity increases in pugnacity.

As to man--do we not know that his whole history is a history of war? In the savage state, tribes are continually at warfare. In barbarous nations, those fierce contests are prosecuted on a larger scale. How seldom were the tribes of Greece at peace! How seldom closed the doors of the Temple of Janus in ancient Rome! Read the history of modern nations--of France or Great Britain, for example--and how frequent are the wars, how brief are the intervals of peace!

The same spirit that has led men, in all ages, to engage in war, drives them into individual contests. After thousands of years of civilizing influences; of education, preaching, and the arts and the advantages of peace--we find men as ready as ever to fight. Whole nations are interested in the contest of two prize-fighters.

There are quakers and men of peace from principle; and there are cowards and men of peace from constitution; but these are exceptional characters. Humanity, like animality in general, is beligerent. It loves a row. It finds the highest excitement and the keenest pleasure in combat. An officer once confessed to us that he had never known such keen delight as in the heat of a sanguinary battle. It is human nature--its lowest side, if you please, but the side that has been most active, and is likely to be for ages to come.

HONESTLY EMPLOYED.--The London correspondent of the Manchester Guardian says:

Lord Lovelace's son and heir, the grandson to whom ultimately go the bulk of the late Lady Byron's large landed property and who now becomes Baron Wentworth by her death, is at this moment, I believe, and certainly has for a considerable time past, been working at weekly wages as an artisan in the smith's department in Woolwich Arsenal. For the son of an earl, and the heir of a barony by writ, I should call this a unique case. The fact, however, is certain--Lord Lovelace's daughter, to whom passes the late Lady Byron's large personal property, is an inheritor of much of the rare ability of her mother, Ada, the only daughter of Lord Byron.

THE EDITOR.--At a recent printers' festival the following capital toast was drank:

The Editor--the man that is expected to know everything: tell all he knows, and guess at the rest; to make known his own good character, establish the reputation of his neighbor, and elect all candidates to office; to blow up everybody, suit everybody and reform the world; to live for the benefit of others, and have the epitaph on his tomb:--"Here he lies at last."--In short he is a locomotive runner on the track of public notoriety; his lever is his pen, his boiler is filled with ink, his tender is his scissors, his driving wheel is public opinion; whenever he explodes it is caused by the non-payment of subscriptions.

A PROSELYTE.--A dry old codger connected with the railroad interest, a man who listens always and speaks little, and was never known to argue a hobby with anybody, has lately been all mouth and ear to a very communicative spiritualist of the ultra school. He listened to and swallowed all sorts of things from the other world with so much placidity of assent, that the spiritualist at last believed him to be one of the faithful. A few days since, the spiritualist said to his pupil: "The spirit of B-- appeared to me last night, and ordered me to borrow five dollars of you," for a certain purpose which was named. "Yes, I know it did," replied the one, "and isn't it strange! the same spirit called on me half an hour afterwards, and told me not to let you have the money, as it had made a mistake in giving you the order!"--The pretended spiritualist has not been to see the codger since.

GILDED roots and silver door locks cannot shut out sleepless nights.

A MYSTERIOUS LEGACY--VALUABLES

LEFT IN AN IRON BOX--The Nunda News makes the following announcement of a windfall to the Hon. Luther C. Peck, of Angelica. The News says:-- Louis Strok, a Prussian by birth, died at Lovejoy's Hotel, New York city, on Thursday, August 30th, and left his entire property to Mrs. L. C. Peck, of this place. The deceased came to this country in 1827, and shortly after landing in New York engaged in the occupation of importing Prussian shawls, where, it is supposed, he amassed considerable wealth. After a time he removed to Angelica, where he resided for about twenty years, dealing mostly in real estate. Soon after Mr. Strok arrived at Angelica he became acquainted with Mr. Peck, and a warm friendship has always existed between them. In 1855, Mr. Strok becoming well advanced in years, being a bachelor, and having no friends in this country, made his will, by which he made Mrs. L. C. Peck, the sole legatee of his personal property and real estate, and L. C. Peck his sole executor. His property is estimated at between thirty and forty thousand dollars. Mr. Strok went to New York last Spring. At his death he left a large trunk, on the inside of which was an iron box, which he said contained everything in regard to his history and all that would be of interest to his friends, and that no human eye had ever seen the inside except his own, and never would until opened by his executor. He was a very eccentric individual, and but little has ever been known of his early history, some supposing that he was banished from the country of his birth at the instigation of some of his friends. It is said that he was a man of extraordinary education, speaking fluently five different languages. Therefore, to those who have known him, there is a great anxiety to know what the iron box contains. Mr. Peck and son left for New York on Monday last to take charge of his personal property and examine the contents of the iron box, and when they return we shall probably learn what there is of interest to the public in regard to the whole affair.

DOBBS' FIRST "MOTION."--Dobbs, during his first session as a member of the Legislature, was caught without a speech. He was remarkable for his modesty, and his thirst for "red eye."

One unlucky day the proceedings being rather dull, and Dobbs being rather thirsty, he concluded to take a drink. As Dobbs rose to leave the hall, he caught the Speaker's eye. The Speaker supposed he intended to address the House, and announced in a loud voice: "Mr. Dobbs!"

Dobbs started as if he had been shot. The assembled wisdom of the State had their eyes fixed upon him. He pulled out his pocket handkerchief to wipe the perspiration, and feeling it necessary to say something, he thundered out: "Second the motion."

"There is no motion before the House," "Then I--I--"

The silence was breathless. "I--"

"I move to adjourn." The motion didn't go, but Dobbs did, and nothing more was seen of him that day.

THE LOVE TEST.--Single ladies, said Captain Morgan, often cross the water under the special care of the captain of the ship; and if a love affair occurs among the passengers, the captain is usually the confident of one or both parties. A very fascinating young lady was placed under my care, and three young gentlemen fell desperately in love with her. They were all equally agreeable, and the young lady was puzzled which to encourage. She asked my advice.--"Come on deck," said I, "the first day when it is perfectly calm--the gentlemen will, of course, all be near you. I will have a boat quietly lowered down; then do you jump overboard, and see which of the gentlemen will be the first to jump after you. I will take care of you." A calm day soon came, the captain's suggestion was soon followed, and two of the lovers jumped after the lady at the same instant. But between these two the lady could not decide, so exactly equal had been their devotion. She again consulted me. "Take the man that didn't jump--he's the most sensible fellow, and will make the best husband."

A SCOTCH geologist, being in the country on the Sabbath, and having his pocket hammer with him, took it out and was chipping the rocks by the wayside for examination. His proceeding did not escape the quick eye and ever ready tongue of an old Scotch woman.

"What are you doing there, man?" "Can't you see?--I am breaking a stone."

"Ye're doing maer than that; ye're breaking the Sabbath, man!"

RECOMMEND to your children virtue. This alone can make them happy.

"AULD NICK" AND THE SERVANT.

A verdant Irish girl, just arrived, was sent to an intelligence office by the Commissioner of Emigration, to find a place at service. She was sent to a restaurant, where "a stout help" was wanted, and while in conversation with the proprietor, he took occasion to light his cigar by igniting a Vesuvian match on the sole of his boot. As soon as she saw this, she ran away half frightened to death, and when she reached the office was almost out of breath. "Why, what is the matter with you?" said the proprietor, seeing her rush in with such confusion. "Och, sure, sir, ye's sint me to the auld Nick himself in human form." What does he mean? has he dared to insult a help from my office?" inquired the man. "Yes, sir, returned the girl, 'he's the auld Nick!'" "What did he do? Tell me, and I'll fix him for it," said he, quite exasperated. "Why, sur, whilst I was talking to him about the wages, he turned up the bottom of his fut, and wid a splinter in his finger, sur, he just gave one stroke, and the fire flew out of his fut and burned the stick, and he lighted his cigar with it, right afore my own face! He's the auld Nick, shure, sur!"

A YANKEE, from Maine, being at Buena Vista the night before the battle, and some what doubtful of the result, went out of hearing, as he supposed, and made the following prayer: "O Lord, here we are, about four thousand of us, and twenty thousand Mexicans--enough to swallow us without greasing. Now, if you can help us, do it--and if you can't, for heaven's sake don't help the Mexicans--and just hold on until to-morrow, and you will see the gual darndest fight you ever saw in your life. Yours respectfully, amen."

PRETTY GOOD.--A newly married couple some years since, took up their abode in Poplar street. At breakfast the next morning, after their entrance the gentlemen said to his lady--"My dear, this is Poplar street and by putting in a (you) it becomes popular." "And by putting us in it," promptly replied the lady, "it will become populous."

"My son, haven't I told you three times to go and shut that gate?" said a father to a four year old. "Yes," said Young America, "and haven't I told you three times that I wouldn't do it? You must be stupid."

ENRAGED PARENT.--"You comes here, you vagabone! Vere you peen, eh? Oh, mein Gots! you schmels vorse dan von schunk; now I vips you mit ter proom, and if you runs away agin I puts you in der papers, and den you're ruint."

A cook expected company and was at a loss how to entertain her friends. Her mistress said: "Chloe, you must make an apology." "La! Missus, how can I make it! I got no apples, no eggs, no butter, no nuffin to make it wid."

"WELL, George," asked a friend of a young lawyer, "how do you like your profession?" "Alas! sir, my profession is better than my practice."

THE more our ladies practice walking, the more graceful they become in their movements. Those ladies acquire the best carriage who do not ride in one.

DON'T be in to great a hurry, girls, to fall in love with young men. It often happens that your hearts are sooner theirs than theirs are no longer yours.

It has been found by oculists that when a person has only one eye, it is invariably the left one.

HE is a brave man who is not afraid to wear his old clothes until he is able to buy new ones.

WE think that a man carries the borrowing principle a little too far when he asks us to lend him our ears.

WHY is a sheet of postage stamps like distant relatives? Because they are but slightly connected.

A man may generally expect a domestic "breeze" when his wife begins to put on "airs."

AN IRISH judge, said, when addressing a prisoner, "You are to be hanged, and I hope it may prove a warning to you."

A POET says that the wind kisses the waves. That, we suppose, is the celebrated "kiss for a blow" about which we have heard so much.

WHY is a man who spoils his children like another who builds castles in the air? Because he indulges in fancy (infancy) too much.

A MISS GILMORE was courted by a man whose name was Haddock, who told her that he only wanted one gill more to make him a perfect fish.

THE PACIFIC TELEGRAPH.—We understand that a meeting of the Directors of the Western Union Telegraph Company was held recently in Rochester, New York, in which gentlemen interested in California and Missouri telegraphs participated. It was resolved to take immediate measures for the commencement of the work. The route selected is the Central Overland mail route, and the wires are to be extended westward from Fort Kearney, their present limit, as soon as practicable. An agent, Creighton, who has had the principal charge of the building of the lines in Nebraska and Kansas Territories, is to start immediately for Salt Lake City, to enter into a contract for poles, to be delivered early in the Spring, and to contract for such transportation supplies as are likely to be needed. Wade, one of the leading managers of the Western Union Company leaves for California by the steamer from New York, to perfect arrangements to consolidate the interest of the California companies, now working eastward, with a view to harmonious action when the wires have spanned the continent. As the California Legislature has offered a bonus of six thousand dollars per annum to the first company that opens a communication by telegraph between the Atlantic and Pacific, the company to whom the Government subsidy was awarded, will be entitled, on the completion of the telegraph, to forty-six thousand dollars per year.

We are informed that a separate charter for the Pacific Telegraph Company will be taken out, so as not to interfere with the present business of the Western Union Company, but for present purposes the latter company has agreed to advance the necessary capital. This is the first practical step, and it has so much of an energetic business spirit about it that we rejoice in anticipation.—Missouri Democrat, Oct. 12th.

THE MINT.—The amount of gold bullion deposited for coinage at the Mint last week, was 8,033.62 ounces Troy; of silver bullion, 1,007.65. The total coinage was $125,000, of which $110,000 was in double eagles and $5,000 in half-dollars.
